

EMAIL MIGRATION

IT project management in international data migration projects

audriga is an award-winning pioneer in data portability and cloud-based data migration services.

Our customers are large telcos and ISPs, hosting companies, and private customers from all over the world.

We're searching graduates and students with a business/IT degree for:

- Coordinating between our customers and our technical teams
- Managing customer projects of different sizes (infrequent travelling required)
- Support in different sales activities (pre-sales, key-account management)
- Product management for existing and future products and services

We expect:

- Good IT skills and the ability to quickly understand complex processes
- Good communication skills (ability to translate between technical and non-technical people)
- Good English language skills (spoken and written)
- Ability to work with international project teams offsite and onsite (no permanent onsite assignments)
- A "problem solving mindset" and eagerness to learn

We offer:

- A challenging work environment with the opportunity to take own responsibility
- Experience in small and large projects with international customers
- Flexible working conditions

For more information and other job offers see www.audriga.com/jobs